Looking on the Worst Side.

We have a number of individuals in New Mexico, who delight to air their scribblings in distant newspapers, much to the detriment of the Territory at large, They always look on the dark side and exaggerate frightfully the worst foa tures of the picture. They some times have elements of truth in their writings, upon which they build fabulous stories of degra lation, oppression, ruin and crime; but more often the interesting correspondence is made up of barefaced and shameless lies. This thing of holding up the Territory to the outside world es a pandemonium, where life and property are insecure, where vice reigns supreme and law and justice are not enforced, when the facts will not warrant it, is becoming too fashionable and demands a rebuke. These writings are not true; they misrepresent the Territory and retard its advancement. They defeat the object for which they are designed, provided they are charitably supposed to be designed for a proper motive, by an honest man. Strangers reading of New Mexico for the first time, obtain a very erroneous impression of the condition lowing from the Salutatory: of society, law and order in our midst. They learn to look upon it fluenced by tyrannical officials.

But some one writing from Santa Fé to the Puello Chieftain, under the title of Gal x. denies that the statement of the GAZETTE is correct, and then proceeds to reh arse the old story of the immorality and viciousness of the prople of New Mexico. G. lax's mind is evi dently not clear and goes wool gath ering. He has some indefinite ideas in his head, but does not know exactly what they are, or how to extress them. Hestyles the GAZETTE and intellectual sheet, and possibly gets near the truth in that states ment. He misstates what the GA-ZETTE really said, and then proceeds to answer, drawing the usual repulsive pieture. He wanders off to the State question and then back to the Santa Fé ring, ngitates elucation and winds up in a fog Galax did not answer what the Ga-ZETTE stated. He gives no proof, or cites no community with which to compare New Mexico in point of criminal actions. He does state that Alcalde rourts are notoriously incompetent and corrupt. That is a general statement, which applies equally well to Justice of the Peace courts in any of the States. No one wants to rik any que tion of importance before the average Justice of the Peace in the States, and hence their jurisdiction is limited. We believe our Alcal le courts here will compare pretty favorably with similar courts in the States. He ays the admini tration of the law is utterly bad. There Galax is mis-ome facts, or else say nothing The courts is New Mexico exert a good influence. Injustice may be done in individual cases; so it is everywhere; but violence is restrained, good order prevails, life is safe and property secure throughout the length and breadth of the Territory. It is no more dangerous to live in New Mexico than in New York Cav. Galax must look on the other side of the picture. Instead of misrepresenting the Territory by papers, let him turn his attention the bright side, and aid in bringing hither the means to advance the material prosperity of the Territory and with it, the intellectual and
